"I want to make a charge of intoxication against this woman. She is my wife, he said, when he arraigned his prisoner before the desk.

Mrs. Monaghan protested that she was sober, and Sergt, Gallagher saw that she was not under the influence of liquor. Monaghan's face was flushed and he was greatly excited. The Sergeant told the woman that she could go home. He ordered the policeman to sit down in a back room. Monaghan refused to go, and when a couple of policemen tried to force him there was a wreetling match, which resulted in Monaghan being put in a cell.

Mrs. Monaghan told the police that her husband, on his return home this morning, accused her of being drunk. Her denial angered him, and he ordered her to follow him to the station-house.

Mrs. Monaghan says she was dragged qui of the house wearing only a light wrapper, and hauled three blocks to the station-house. There was a long tear in the side of her dress. Inspector McKelvey is investigating the matter, and Monaghan will prohably be called to answer charges before Commissioner Welles next Tuesday.
